Rohit Malhotra, is the Executive director of Center for Civic Innovation, a resource hub and open campus for civic innovators and social entrepreneurs in downtown Atlanta. Before this, Malhotra worked at a variety of interesting positions such as: social media for President Obama’s first run for the White House, Bono’s “One Campaign,” served as an Ash Center Government Innovations Fellow for the White House-Executive Office of the President, and became interested in open data (sharing of public records) within governments.

Malhotra studied at Emory University and received his Masters degree from Harvard University’s John F. Kennedy School of Government.