Carol Godfrey oversees a team responsible for positioning her company’s sustainable supply chain. Southwire is one of the largest wire and cable manufacturers in the world, and Godfrey is involved with maintaining the company’s presence in the power and renewable energy industry.

In previous roles, Godfrey was responsible for developing new product and service offerings, strategic partnerships, future product positioning, and acquisitions. Godfrey leads the Southwire Engineering Academy (SWEA), a program creating shared value via Southwire’s public-private partnership with Carrollton High School. SWEA, a cooperative internship program for 11th and 12th grade Carrollton High School students, creates a community of STEM excellence.
